RESEARCH FELLOWSHIP

Francis I. Proctor Foundation
University of California,
San Francisco

The Francis I. Proctor Foundation for Research in Ophthalmology conducts a one to two year training program in ocular inflammatory and infectious diseases for Board qualified ophthalmologists and post-doctoral scientists. The fields of study in the Foundation include microbiology and pathogenesis of chlamydial, bacterial and viral (particularly herpes simplex) eye infections, ocular immunology, and cell biology. Research support for U.S. citizens is available through an NIH departmental training grant or through individual applications to the NIH and other agencies. Applicants from outside the US are also encouraged to apply.

Applications for July 1987 fellowships will be accepted until March 31, 1986.

For further information and application forms, please write to Chandler Dawson, M.D., Director, F. I. Proctor Foundation, University of California, San Francisco, CA 94143. Telephone: (415) 476-2658
